Page Layout: List of trams in Thailand This is a list of tramway systems in Thailand. History Trams first appeared in Thailand in the year 1926. At the beginning of the 20th century, Thailand had a good transportation system with steam trains and mostly wooden buses. Steam trains and wooden buses were popular and could be seen on every street corner. Although railroads were built all over the country, especially the well-known Thailand Railway Company, Thailand's first steam trains were the Sukhumvit Line. This line, starting in the middle of Bangkok, was the first passenger train line in Thailand, where passengers could enjoy a clear view of the country. Although steam trains only went to the country's capital, the public's interest in rail transportation grew. In the early 1930s, steam trains in Thailand began to disappear due to electrification, as electric railroads in Bangkok were opened for the public. However, electric railroads were in small scale and were used for goods transportation as well as making cross-country trips, since a fully electric train could not be used in Bangkok, as the train was too tall for most of the city's canals and river banks. At this time, electric railways were expanded, not only in Bangkok, but in all parts of the country. In 1938, rubber and bamboo started to be transported along the new narrow gauge railways in Thailand. The narrow gauge railways had
