But what about international laws? A: International law is binding on the United States, primarily through the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights (which the US ratified in 1992, effective in 1994). Article 6:2 of that covenant provides: (2) Parties shall not impose penalties or apply sanctions except in a manner consistent with the Covenant and to that end, the United States has ratified (as well as accepted) some agreements that establish an international criminal court and that are relevant in the resolution of "serious" criminal offences. The United States also has ratified the Rome Statute (1998), and by doing so has agreed to be bound by its provisions (the Rome Statute only expressly applies to the "Signatories" who have ratified it). The Rome Statute now provides the framework for the International Criminal Court, and broadly defines the crimes it is empowered to investigate, try, and punish. Q: How to produce a symmetrical inverse transform matrix for RANSAC I'm running the Hough transform on an image. Then when I find the result I need to get the same result from the "closest point" fit in terms of the inverse transform. At the moment I am using RANSAC and fitting a line using get inverses of the transform matrix that I am getting from the Hough transform. Is there a different technique that would produce the same result more reliably or faster? I'm going to be comparing a number of images and the amount of lines I
