Renal dysfunction is a common complication of diabetes mellitus and is associated with a poor prognosis. Screening of patients with diabetes mellitus is necessary to prevent renal dysfunction and subsequent end-stage renal disease. In this study, we determined the prevalence of asymptomatic renal dysfunction in a cohort of diabetic patients. Renal function was assessed by measuring the estimated glomerular filtration rate (eGFR) in 130 diabetic patients and comparing them with 90 healthy controls, and from these values, the prevalence of diabetic renal dysfunction (eGFR < 60 ml/min/1.73 m(2)) was estimated. The median values of the eGFR were 83 ml/min/1.73 m(2) in the diabetic patients and 98 ml/min/1.73 m(2) in the controls. Diabetic patients with eGFR values < 60 ml/min/1.73 m(2) were older and had a longer duration of diabetes mellitus. Only 30% of the diabetic patients had eGFR < 60 ml/min/1 f988f36e3a
