I don't think its that tough of an issue - but more on that in a moment. It's been a month since the issue was published - and as I said in the last post, things have started to come together for the launch (and as I said, this is one of the reasons why I've sat on things for a few days). Sure, the production schedule between now and June is going to change once my aunt gets her surgery scheduled and sure, there are things I want to change in between now and then, but one thing is very clear - whether the issue is #1 or not, the issues in the back are going to be resolved by mid April
